

THE WAR THAT SHOULDN'T BE

Most people in the United States support - at least in principle - the fighting men and women who are dedicated to protecting this country against its enemies. I am proud to have been one of those in uniform, who would have laid down my life to keep the country I loved safe... but that was thirty five years ago, and I was a naive 19 year-old who went along with the so-called patriotism, because it seemed to be the right thing to do. Many years later, we found out that Vietnam was an unnecessary war, and that we never intended to win it from its inception. Worst of all, we now know that the catalyst which got us involved in that war was a fabricated provocation - the Gulf of Tonkin incident, which NEVER HAPPENED.

Almost 60,000 Americans perished, and many, many more were wounded and maimed for life in that great distraction, which served only to enrich the warmongers and drug dealers, and distract the public's attention away from a Supreme Court which did not INTERPRET the Constitution, but found legal loopholes, and imagined interpretations in order to violate the principles for which it stands.

Several wars later, the people who pull the levers in the voting booths are a bit smarter... but sadly, not by very much. The politicians who are the servants of Big Business and covert international drug and oil cartels, and who secretly despise America, had to have an excuse to pass the so-called "USA Patriot Act"; a misnomer if I ever heard one.

The enemies of freedom knew that the government - even with the military, could never enforce a martial law upon the free citizens of this country, and so they devised a plan, and a set of interlocking, seemingly unrelated laws and legislations that would effectively nullify the Constitution, and enslave us all - economically - and if the plan worked, we would welcome the totalitarians with open arms.

In the book of Job, chapter 2, the devil, trying to get Job to "Curse God, and die" (as Job's wife suggested), said to God, "...Skin for skin, yea, all that a man hath will he give for his life". A nation of people afraid of random terrorist attacks, will give up their right to privacy, and to be free from unlawful searches and seizures, in order to feel safe from terrorist attacks. My friends, it is a false sense of security. A suicide bomber, who is determined to take his own life, will ultimately succeed, and the nature of the beast precludes prevention of such attacks. The proof of the validity of my assertion here is that these types of attacks have happened for decades, in countries which have had time to develop a strategy for their prevention. We see that no strategy to date has been effective in Israel or the Middle East, and we should not think ourselves so superior and advanced that we can prevent such things from happening here. The solution to terrorism is not to create terrorists. By occupying sovereign countries where we have no business, and no moral right to be, is a provocation to the "terrorists", who are considered patriots in their home countries. One country's terrorist is another country's patriot.

The terrorist mentality is to frighten the citizens - which then spend inordinate amounts of money attempting to prevent what cannot be prevented. New York City is going to spend 250 million dollars for cameras in the subways. You know what the cameras will do? They will give us live video of people being blown to bits along with the bomber, should such an attack materialize. What will we do with a video of a bomber blowing himself up? Will we drag the bits of flesh and shards of clothing into a courtroom and prosecute the bastard posthumously?

President Bush's comments in early August 2005, which basically stated that we would "seem weak" if we withdraw from Iraq, gives us a clue to what will happen in the future. Once you are familiar with psychopathic mentalities, and a bit of Dianetics, it is not difficult to plot the trend path for the future.

With no valid cause other than corporate greed, Bush and his warmongering supporters need an excuse to save face; an event they can point to and say, "I told you so". In Dianetics, this pathology is known as "asserted rightness". This phenomenon occurs when a person is ACTUALLY wrong, but desperately needs to BELIEVE he is right. In order to believe it himself, he first tries to convince others that he's right. He attempts to accomplish this by repeating (or not stopping) the behavior that makes him wrong. The ASSERTION of being right quickly becomes divorced from the ACTUAL FACT of being right or wrong.

I know of no person up until the events of 9-11 happened, that bore any animosity towards Muslims, or anyone in the Middle East. If you are a politician who wants to start a war, the best thing you can do is stir up animosity between races, nationalities, or religions. I say it is “the best thing you can do”, because that technique always works. It has worked all throughout history, and because human beings have never learned to learn from their history, we are destined to repeat the same mistakes that caused the downfall of many nations throughout human history. Personally (and you can choose to believe what you want to) I believe the Iraq war was contrived, and that ultimately means that the United States government – or the people (Corporations) who are actually the United States government – (at least) gave their tacit consent for 9-11, if they were not actively involved in its planning.

I know that I am not the only one who is saying that some “shadow government” is operating in the United States. If what I and many besides myself believe is true, when you go into a voting booth and pull that lever, you might as well stay home and flush your toilet, because if the man we elect as president, or governor, or mayor (or any political office, for that matter) does not do what “the powers that be” demand he does, he could end up like John F. Kennedy with a bullet hole in his neck and the back of his skull missing.¹ If this is true, and I have labored for over 10 years to prove to myself that it isn't true, then it does not bode well for this republic called “The United States of America”.

The initial premise for the Iraq war was “Weapons of Mass Destruction” (WMDs). Now, because we didn't find any, does not mean that they actually did (and do) not actually exist. However, Israel, Pakistan, North Korea, and China (among others) also have nuclear, biological, and chemical weapons. Why are we not pursuing them? Simple; these countries don't have OIL. These countries will not lend themselves easily to being exploited by the money-hungry corporations that run the world (aka: The Illuminati, CFR², et al.). The United States persecuting a nation with a preemptive war because that nation is alleged to have the propensity for using WMDs is like the pot calling the kettle “black”. The US is the first nation to use biological weapons; the settlers gave the “Indians” blankets infected with smallpox; we were first to develop and were the first to use nuclear weapons on Hiroshima and Nagasaki, when their use was totally unwarranted. It is true that the Japanese were trying to surrender for 6 months prior to those bombs being dropped.³

As Americans, we can no longer afford unjustified patriotism. Patriotism is loyalty to a set of moral standards or beliefs – not the blind capitulation to the whims of “elected” officials. When the republic turns into a democracy, it is time, in my opinion, to invoke our 2nd Amendment right – and I don't mean the “right” to go duck hunting. A president who intentionally provokes a war with a sovereign nation with no other provocation other than his own greed and personal aggrandizement, and against the will and better judgment of the people who elected him; who uses the time-tested black psychology of fomenting enemies abroad for the purpose of rallying support for an illegal, immoral, unjust, unpopular war, and who uses the lives, limbs, and sanity of the honorable men and women sworn to protect this country against its enemies for said purpose, is beneath contempt, is guilty of war crimes, crimes against humanity, and treason. Such a person should be impeached and put on trial. Unless the American people wake up from their patriotic fantasies and examine the evidence, the conflict that this war is the seed for, will be the war to end all wars. The prophesy of what is to occur is written in the Book of Ezekiel, chapter 38 and 39. Once you begin to understand the Bible, you can clearly see the events unfolding; the prophesy is “the history of the future”, and I personally believe we can change it.

¹ In my book “Land of Childhood's Fears”, there is a photo of JFK lying on a slab, with a bullet hole in his neck. I and several other veterans who held Top military security clearances, propose a new scenario for the JFK assassination never before postulated.

All of us, of course, support our troops, and it is a difficult dichotomy to resolve – Supporting the troops and loathing the so-called “noble cause” for which they are fighting. We⁴ made the mistake of hating the Vietnam veteran for the folly of his (her) commanders. We need not repeat that mistake again. At his writing (August 27, 2005), a lone mother, Cindy Sheehan, is exposing the reality of the cost of this war to the families of those brave young soldiers who died believing they were defending this country – as almost 60,000 of my brothers perished fighting in the 10-year quagmire of Vietnam a generation ago. We need to support Cindy, and admire her courage, and to grieve with her for her honorable son who died for nothing... well... not for NOTHING... Casey Sheehan’s death, and his mother’s grieving and demanding to know the answer to the question:

“What was the noble cause my son died for?”

and President Bush’s refusal to speak with her, shines the glaring light of truth onto the Bush Crime Family – and I believe, is a benchmark for a decision that America has to make. If we make the wrong decision; if we allow this megalomaniac; this psychopathic member of a satanic organization known as “Skull and Bones” occupying the White House to continue to deceive the American people, and to continue to prosecute this war, we will be involved in a much worse situation than we ever could have gotten ourselves into in Southeast Asia.

We are now witnessing the establishment of an Islamic Republic with Shari Law coming out of the “democratic elections” in Iraq. As we build permanent bases in the Middle East, military bases here at home are being closed. Our troops being occupied with Iraq and Afghanistan at the moment, MAKES our country vulnerable. President Bush said he disagreed with Cindy Sheehan; that “pulling our troops out would send the wrong message to the terrorists... that America is weak”. Well, how does a Superpower with 9,000 nuclear missiles seem “weak” to anyone but an idiot? Indeed, if we don’t have the courage of our convictions once we know the truth; if we refuse to admit our mistakes; if we refuse to right our wrongs, and insist that we’re right when we’re wrong, then we won’t “seem weak”, we ARE weak..

SEARCHING FOR TERRORISTS

There is much to be said about the gullibility of human beings in general, and I wish to make a valid point, which could be considered another piece of the puzzle that comprises the “big picture” that very few people seem to want to see.

After the subway bombings in London, New York City appears to be “on lockdown”. On July 23, 2005, I traveled from Long Island City to Merrick, NY by train. On the subway, I counted no less (there were probably more who I didn't see) than 26 soldiers with riot gear and M-16 rifles. A dozen more were on the platforms of the Long Island Rail Road. I didn't see anyone being searched, even though I was waiting for the train for about 45 minutes.

The following day, all of the newspapers - even the free ones - were proclaiming the public's acceptance of property searches, some saying that they feel safer, and many people allegedly offering their bags and packages to be searched (see NY Post, July 26, 27, 2005).

Allow me to bust your stupid bubble, America... a suicide bomber carrying 10 pounds of C-4 explosive onto the subway, has already made up his sick mind (because he's been brainwashed) that today he’s going to die in Jihad, and thereby will be in heaven with his 74 virgins and an endless supply of whatever mind-altering liquors or psychopharmacology he desires.

⁴ “We” refers to the nation as a whole – I am a Vietnam veteran, and so was the recipient of the general loathing people had for members of the military and Vietnam veterans in particular.

The point I'm trying to make here, is that such a person, is not going to allow his mission to be jeopardized. If approached and challenged, the suicide bomber has two choices: 1) He can refuse to be searched, in which case he will not be allowed to enter the subway. He will then probably board a crowded bus and pull the pin. 2) A suicide bomber confronted with a demand to reveal the contents of a backpack will most likely detonate the explosives right then and there.

Therefore, I submit to you, America, that you are tolerating the violation of your right to privacy, and to move about in an allegedly "free society" unmolested by government forces; you are being emotionally manipulated into trading your God-given rights for a truly false sense of security.

"...skin for skin, yea, all that a man hath will he give for his life" - Job 2:4b

That is what the Devil said to God after he destroyed Job's life, and killed his family. Though Job was afflicted, he stood fast in his faith (trust) in God. At the end; after Job suffered much, God blessed him even more richly as before.

What America needs to do is ask the hard questions of our leaders. When those questions, such as, "Why are we being attacked? What did you people do to create this mess?"; when those questions go unanswered, or are answered with obfuscations and lies, those politicians should be charged and tried for treason.

No doubt, there is a satanic agenda afoot here. Such treachery does not happen randomly; it does not happen without good reason. The propaganda that 9-11 and the other terrorist attacks prior to that, has been blamed on "lone gunmen", "radical militiamen", or "Islamic extremism". Nonsense! America needs to look past the surface appearances that are purposely fabricated to keep Americans ignorant of the truth.

America, you would do well to take the time to research these things for themselves. You can start by reading Dr. Stan Monteith's book "Brotherhood of Darkness", and my book "Land of Childhood's Fears". You would also be educated by listening to Dr. Stan's radio program, and by downloading and listening to past (archived) radio programs on www.RadioLiberty.com

America, I challenge you to become informed, and get "The NEWS behind the NEWS, the story behind the story". Listen to Radio Liberty, and the programs where I discussed my book, on Vietnam and that era, and why I wrote it:
